How Khaki Cloth Was Discovered

The London Daily News, to illustrate the part played by lucky accident in the discovery of inventions, told the other day a story about khaki, the olive-colored canvas cloth worn by the English and American soldiers in hot countries. This cotton stuff has been worn in India by British troops for many years. Its tint was a greenish brown, but it always faded when it was washed with soap. #### SMALL CRAFT ADRIFT.

Things were prety lively around the Healani boat house Wednesday night. The storm broke about 12 o'clock and played havor with the small craft in the vicinity. First the lighter belongthen the La Paloma parted her forward DAY, 16th, at 7:30 p. m. drifted seaward. The brothers J. A., H. J. and W. E. Young, who live next to the boathouse, went to the rescue,

They first attempted to use their steam leunch but the heavy sea put the fires out and she became useless. It was too rough to use a small boat and there was nothing for it btu to swim. While one of the boys made the club lighter fast the other two swam out to the La Palama and anchored her. They were kept busy all night tying up the small craft that were constantly breaking

Captain Martenson of the Star of Russia, is bemoaning his fate, first, in being held up by the Seaman's Unton then by the elements. He is ready for sea at last but cannot go out in this weather. He gracefully acknowledges his defeat by the Seaman's Union and claims that he was treated fairly by them in meeting him half-way. They compromised on a wage rate of $40 to Puget sound instead of $50 as reported.
